"For nearly 50 years, the Tahoe Donner Golf Course has challenged even the best of players and thoughtfully integrated natural streams, towering conifers and stunning alpine views into its course design," said David Mickaelian, Tahoe Donner General Manager. "We are excited to have completed necessary renovations last year and are thrilled to help celebrate Tahoe Donner's 50th anniversary by welcoming our community back to rediscover this beautiful alpine golf course."

Tahoe Donner was honored to work with Cary Bickler, who recently celebrated 50 years as a golf course architect. An expert in golf course restoration, Bickler has overseen improvements for multiple courses up and down the California coast, including the La Jolla Country Club, La Cumbre Country Club in Santa Barbara, as well as previous work at Tahoe Donner. Each element of the course's expansion and upgrade was designed with increased playability in mind. With a layout that promotes improved shot selection and turf that fares better in the off-seasons, Tahoe Donner's golf experience is more elevated than ever before.
